

Dr. Rachel E. Witt, M.D. is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Pediatrics, Division of Neonatology at the University of Minnesota. She is from Northwestern Wisconsin originally, spent significant time abroad while growing up, and was delighted to return to this region in 2022 as faculty. She completed medical school at the University of Pennsylvania Perelman School of Medicine in Philadelphia, pediatric residency and neonatal-perinatal medicine fellowship at Washington University in St. Louis/St. Louis Children's Hospital. Her research is qualitative/mixed methods and conducted in partnership with families of infants cared for in the NICU, with a special focus on the impact of racism on neonatal intensive care. She is also co-leading the build of a longitudinal portion of University of Minnesota Medical School curriculum content focused on Minnesota health disparities and equity.
