

Scott D. Berns, MD, MPH, FAAP has served as President and CEO at the National Institute for Children's Health Quality (NICHQ) since 2015, where he applies his extensive experience working across academic, clinical, nonprofit, community, and public health settings to lead initiatives aimed at driving change to improve children's health. Berns is a nationally recognized expert in quality improvement science in maternal and child health and has published extensively. In addition, he currently serves on the Executive Committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics' Council on Quality Improvement and Patient Safety as well as the Section on Neonatal-Perinatal Medicine. Prior to joining NICHQ, Berns spent 14 years at the March of Dimes National Office serving as the Senior Vice President of Chapter Programs and the Deputy Medical Officer. He provided direction in education and community services to all March of Dimes state-based chapters, including DC and Puerto Rico. While at the March of Dimes, he served as a Co-Chair of the Gravens Conference. Berns is a board-certified pediatrician and pediatric emergency physician. He is a Clinical Professor of Pediatrics at the Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University and Clinical Professor of Health Services, Policy and Practice at the Brown School of Public Health. Berns also completed a one-year White House Fellowship where he served as a Senior Advisor to the U.S. Secretary of Transportation.